Prologue

The Tribes, seeking knowledge, built a marvelous, grand academy.

Once upon a time, long, long ago...

the Wize Wizard Wizdom chose to bestow the shape and intellect of humans upon beasts.

Thus were the Demi-human Tribes born.

Wizdom

Demi-humans

The academy was dedicated to the study of wizardry, and in honor of their creator...

they named it Wizdom's.

CAT

Felis

Carnivora | Felidae Felis

Felines are lithe animals with well-muscled bodies, keen senses, quick reflexes, and tremendously effective teeth and claws. Adapted for stealth, their fur patterns provide camouflage, while their eyes—with pupils that open wide—and their sensitive whiskers help them maneuver in the dark.

Their tongues have spines called papillae that function as a stiff brush for grooming themselves and scraping meat from prey bones. Siamese cats, a distinctive Asian breed, are known for having strong personalities and for being social, affectionate, intelligent, and occasionally arrogant. They can be incredibly loyal to any human they accept as “theirs.”

Lagomorpha | Leporidae Lepus

Hares have not one but two sets of front incisors. They are the only mammal with kinetic—that is, jointed—skulls. They have extremely large ears, and their eyes are set on the sides of their head, allowing for a 360-degree field of vision. As prey animals, they have evolved extra-large and powerfully muscled hindquarters, which allow them to reach speeds up to 56 kilometers and evade predators. The fur on the base of their paws gives them firm traction when they run. Hares are herbivorous and have high birthrates to help them maintain their population despite predation. Stimulation from copulation is what induces a female hare to ovulate. Unlike rabbits, hares are solitary animals.

GRAY WOLF

Canis lupus

Carnivora | Canidae Canis

Gray wolves are patient, highly adaptable predators. Their entire bodies are muscular, but their hindquarters are especially tough and powerful. They have long, narrow jaws that sport highly developed canines and carnassial teeth. At the end of their narrow muzzle sits a sensitive nose, which they use to hunt and track prey. It is so keen that they can smell individual prey animals from up to 1.5 kilometers away. Gray wolves are a gregarious species, living in groups called packs and protecting a communal territory that they mark with their urine. They are an extremely emotive species, using their scents, body language such as tail-wagging and licking, and vocalizations like yips and howls to communicate.

Artiodactyla | Bovidae Capra

Goats are closely related to sheep and cows. Living in large groups called herds, they can be found in a variety of geographical areas, from high mountain pastures and cliffs to grassy plains and forests. They are prey animals and herbivores, eating primarily grass, leaves, and twigs, which they digest in a four-chambered stomach. Males and females alike grow two short, curving horns, and their wide-set eyes and horizontally split pupils give them panoramic vision while reducing the sun's glare. Their eyes can rotate up to fifty degrees in their sockets, letting them keep watch in multiple directions while they eat. Aside from keen vision, they also have large, sharp ears and a remarkable sense of smell.

DRAGON

Dragon

Most dragons are scaled creatures with sharp fangs and talons. As they walk on land, have scales like a fish, and have wings like a bird, some consider them the Four Classical Elements given flesh. Some species can use their wings to fly. Other species are said to breathe fire. Still others are known to live in caves. Most are thought to live far longer than humans.

Some cultures regard dragons as evil, while others consider them wise sages. While theories about dragons abound, there has yet to be a single comprehensive description of them.

LIZARD

PlestiodonSquamata | Scincidae Plestiodon

Flat elongated bodies, long tails, and wedge-shaped heads are all standard physical traits for lizards. Most have simple ear holes instead of fully developed external ears. Burrowing species have special transparent eyelids that allow them to see while digging underground. Other species have the ability to shed their tails, which are often brightly colored and will keep wiggling to draw predators' attention away from the lizard itself.

As they're cold-blooded, lizards are incapable of regulating their body heat. They often spend the daylight hours sunbathing to stay warm.

Artiodactyla | Cervidae C. elaphus

Red deer are a species group. They have large antlers, which they shed and regrow every year. They walk on what are effectively their third and fourth toes, which have evolved into cloven hooves. At least once a year, they shed and regrow their fur coats. While adults' coats are a solid color, the young have spotted coats for camouflage. Only the males, called stags, grow antlers. (However, male and female reindeer are both capable of growing antlers.) Come rutting season, stags fight each other for dominance, with the winner collecting a harem of females with which he will breed. Outside of that season, they are generally solitary.

INDIAN PEAFOWL

Pavo cristatus

Galliformes | Phasianidae Pavo

Peafowl are primarily ground-dwelling birds that prefer to live in open deciduous forests. As omnivores, they eat nuts, fruits, insects, and small mammals. The spectacular feathers of the male (called a peacock) are not actually tail feathers. They are 150 or so extremely long coverts that grow from the bird's back. A peacock's actual tail feathers are short and brown.

Peacocks spread those decorative feathers, called their train, during courtship displays and to intimidate possible predators by making themselves seem larger than they are.

Passeriformes | Corvidae Corvus

Crows have adapted to survive nearly anywhere, living everywhere from seaside cliffs to cities. They are also omnivores and will eat anything from meat and plants to carrion or even human garbage. They are usually solitary animals, although they will congregate during winter roosting.

Highly intelligent, they are capable of using tools, such as using rocks to crack open shellfish. They also use specific vocalizations to communicate with others by warning them of danger, informing them when food has been located, or even confirming their relative status in the pecking order.

COMMON VAMPIRE BAT

Desmodus rotundus

Chiroptera | Phyllostomidae Desmodus

Bats are the only living winged mammals capable of flight. Their wing membranes are an extension of their back and flank skin, connected to their arms. They have large wingspans for their size.

As nocturnal animals, they use echolocation to maneuver in the dark and detect their prey. They feed exclusively on blood, a practice called hematophagy, preying on other mammals (and the occasional human) like livestock. Once a likely target is located, they will land and approach their prey quietly from the ground, then bite them and lap blood from the wound. It takes them upwards of half an hour to drink only 25ml or so. Their teeth are so sharp their prey barely notices the 5mm incision in their skin, and their saliva contains anticoagulants, which prolongs bleeding.

UNICORN

Unicorn

A unicorn is a mystical creature combining traits of horses and deer. Its signature characteristic is the single spiraling horn in the center of its forehead. They are fiercely proud, powerful, and brave, and are nimble and swift enough to outrun a horse and outmaneuver a deer. Their horns, which are supposedly capable of piercing any material, are long, sharp, and strong.

Several mystical powers are attributed to unicorns, from the ability to purify water or neutralize toxins with a touch of their horn to discerning virginity by scent. It's also said that they have a particular fondness for virgins, preferring their company and being calmer and quieter in their presence. Unicorns are often considered a symbol of the moon.

Griffons have the torso and wings of an eagle combined with the hindquarters and tail of a lion. Legends say they are strong enough, and have sharp enough talons, to seize several cows or horses at once and fly away with them.

Their name—spelled “griffon,” “griffin,” or “gryphon”—comes from the Ancient Greek word gryps, which means “curved.” As their bodies blend traits from eagles (masters of the sky) and lions (masters of the earth), some regard the griffon as a symbol of the earth and sky united, or of the sun.

Early mythologies claimed griffons could find gold and would hoard it. That led to them being known as guardians of wealth and knowledge.

HERE,
LET ME HELP.

AH! NO,
IT'S OKAY!
THEY'RE REALLY HEAVY...

HEFT

LITTLE,
YEAH.

YOU BROUGHT A WHOLE LOT OF THINGS
THIS YEAR.

I KNEW YOU'D BE HERE SOON, THOUGH.

I COULD HEAR THE WALNUTS
YOU WEAR
RATTLING.

RATTL

YOU CARRIED THEM ALL
THIS WAY!
YOU MUST BE TIRED.

I DON'T MIND.

I'D HEARD OF HU-MANS
...

BUT ONLY AS MYTHICAL CREATURES IN BOOKS AT WIZDOM'S.

HE SAYS
HE LIVES
IN A GIANT KINGDOM REALLY
FAR AWAY.

CHARLES IS FROM A TRIBE CALLED THE "HUMANS."

AFTER ALL, NO ONE HAD EVER SEEN A HUMAN. I CERTAINLY HADN'T!

A black and white illustration of a person in a raincoat standing in a forest during a storm. The person is looking down at something on the ground. The background shows large trees and heavy rain falling diagonally across the scene.

AT LEAST, NOT UNTIL I MET
CHARLES.

A black and white illustration of a person in a raincoat looking down. The person has short, light-colored hair and is wearing a dark raincoat over a light-colored shirt. The background is dark and rainy.

HE WAS SMALLER THAN I'D EXPECTED.

THE FIRST HUMAN I'D EVER SEEN.

MORE NOR-MAL.

I FOUND HIM IN THE FOREST, SOAKED TO THE SKIN.

IT WAS A STORMY NIGHT.

AND FOR SOME REASON
...

A close-up black and white illustration of a person's face. The person has short, light-colored hair and is looking down. Their face is wet with rain.

I THOUGHT HE LOOKED TERRIBLY LONELY.

Don't worry. You'll be fine.

Here, let's get you home and bandaged up.

Goodness, you're hurt.

Eep ...!

What happened to you? Are you all right?

SOON WE WERE CHATTING LIKE OLD FRIENDS. HE TOLD ME SO MANY THINGS.

HE SEEMED CAUTIOUS AND DEFENSIVE AT FIRST, BUT BEFORE LONG HE RELAXED.

IN THE END, HE ASKED IF HE MIGHT RETURN SOMEDAY-- AS A PROPER GUEST.

I WAS DELIGHTED TO SAY YES.

ABOUT THE HUMAN KINGDOM.

WHERE HE WENT TO SCHOOL.

WHAT HE MOST ENJOYED EATING.

IT WAS FASCINATING.

HE'S COME TO SPEND A
FEW DAYS WITH ME.

BETWEEN THE END OF WINTER AND THE START OF SPRING...

EVER SINCE, WHEN OUR SCHOOLS ARE BOTH ON HOLIDAY...

WAIT AND SEE!
IT'S A SECRET.

I HAVE A KEEN NOSE,
YOU KNOW!

HM?
WHAT'S THAT TASTY SMELL?

YOU NOTICED?

SECRET?
WHAT COULD IT BE?

DOZE

HERE!

BOFF

TA-DAAA!

RIGHT, I ALMOST FORGOT.

I MADE IT.
I THOUGHT IT'D BE NICE TO EAT ONE TOGETHER.

IT'S A BLUEBERRY PIE.

THE TASTY-SMELLING THING!
WHAT IS IT?

HA HA!
BOY, YOU'RE REALLY DROOLING.

I ALREADY LIKE IT!
CAN WE EAT IT NOW?

ER...

OKAY,
MY MOM DID MOST OF THE WORK.
I JUST HELPED.

BUT I
HOPE
YOU LIKE IT.

THEY REALLY ARE.

LOOK!
A SHOOTING STAR!

THE SKY'S
BLACKER
HERE.

I SEE.

WHERE I LIVE,
YOU CAN'T SEE THEM
THIS CLEARLY.

ACHOO!

IT'S NOT WEIRD.

IT...

I LIKE THAT YOU'RE A HUMAN.

BESIDES...

I THINK THAT'S A GOOD THING!

IT'S ALL SO DIFFERENT FROM THE WORLD
I KNOW.

HEARING YOUR STORIES ABOUT THE HUMAN KINGDOM IS SO INTERESTING.

IT'S THE SAME WITH PEOPLE.

I THINK IT'S GOOD THAT WE'RE DIFFERENT.

MAUCHLY...?

MM...?

AND...

OOPS!
SORRY.

I CAN'T REALLY BREATHE...

ASIAN BLACK BEAR

Ursus thibetanus

Carnivora | Ursidae Ursus

The Asian black bear has a stocky body, a large head, thick limbs, and a short tail. They have a sharp sense of smell, but their senses of sight and hearing are more limited. The thick layer of subcutaneous fat dulls their sense of touch, too. They have large sharp claws that don't retract.

Since they're largely herbivorous, they have flat, rounded molars that are ideal for grinding and crushing plant matter. They're known to feed on a wide variety of things, such as acorns, beech nuts, pinecones, cherries, honey, grasses, herbs, insects, and occasionally meat. They hibernate during the winter. The white patch of fur across their chest looks like a crescent, so they're sometimes nicknamed "moon bears."

Primates | Hominidae Homo

Homo sapiens means "wise human" in Latin. Humans have highly developed brains and vocal cords, allowing them to create intricate communication systems using speech, gestures, and written symbols. Language acquisition is thought to be an ability inherent to the species.

They are the only fully erect bipedal mammal, and they have no tails, only a few vestigial tail bones at the base of their spine. Their hind legs are longer than their forelimbs, and they have fully developed heels. Another rare trait for a mammal is that their bodies are nearly hairless, leaving their skin almost completely exposed.

READING DIRECTIONS

This book reads from right to left, Japanese style. If this is your first time reading manga, you start reading from the top right panel on each page and take it from there. If you get lost, just follow the numbered diagram here. It may seem backwards at first, but you'll get the hang of it! Have fun!!

Whimsical tales of anthropomorphic beasts in love from Nagabe, the bestselling creator of The Girl From the Other Side

Hidden away deep within the woods, far from the prying eyes of the world, lies the Wisdom's School of Wizarding. There beasts of all kinds gather to live, to learn, and to love. From everyday animals to fantastical creatures, these BL stories are told with a realistic and light-hearted touch.
